JOHN LEO BLUTE,
of Napanee.

Killed by an Explosion at Winnipeg
on Saturday Evening last.

At a disastrous fire which occurred in Winnipeg, Man., on Saturday evening, in which seven people were killed, John Leo Blute, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Blute, South Napanee, was one of the victims. The fire started in a lean-to at the rear of the Radford-Wright wholesale door and sash factory, and without warning the back wall was blown out by an explosion, burying the unfortunate victims in tons of brick and large doors. Mr. Blute was passing the building at the time of the explosion and was killed by the falling walls. A twin brother, Frank Blute, resides at Moose Jaw, and brought the remains to Napanee. The funeral took place from his father's residence, South Napanee, on Thursday morning, to St. Patrick's church and internment in St. Patrick's cemetery. Leo had a host of friends in Napanee, and the news of the fatality, which reached Napanee on Sunday, was indeed a sad blow to the members of the family, as well as his many friends.

To Mr. and Mrs. Blute, and the members of the family, The Express joins with the whole community in extending to them heartfelt sympathy.

Four of the most desperate convicts that have ever been bunched together in Canada arrived at the Kingston penitentiary at two o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, from Stoney Mountain penitentiary in Manitoba, in charge of Deputy Warden O'Leary, of Kingston. On the way down when the G.T.R. fast train was just moving out from the Union station, Toronto, they made an attempt to escape, and almost succeeded.

Had it not been for the timely assistance rendered by three of Toronto's most stalwart policemen there is no doubt the escape of the prisoners would have been effected. The train was just pulling out of the Union station, Toronto, when at a given signal from one of the desperadoes the four of them attacked their three guards, beating them over the head with their manacled hands, and almost had the guards at their mercy when assistance arrived.

The four men who tried to escape were Frank Kelly, one of the worst desperadoes in America, who shot and dangerously wounded Constable Traynor and shot at Constable Brown; Harry Jones, Kelly's pal, condemned with him for robbing houses in Elmwood suburb. They are known in Iowa as Mecum brothers, who escaped from penitentiary at Amosloose, Iowa, after shooting down a guard, last June, and came to Winnipeg. They are to serve twelve years.

Arthur Brown is the third man. He is the man who kidnapped Miss Gladys Price, the young school teacher, of Hinch, Ont., near Snowflake, Man., last September. Brown was given eight years.

The fourth convict is Bonnar, a clever young Englishman, serving eight years for horse thieving. He has escaped three times from jail, and with the others, was sent down for safe keeping to Kingston.

What makes the incident of more interest to the people of this county is the fact that a former resident, and one of the guards, was mixed up in the fray.

HIRAM KEECH'S EXPERIENCE.

To travel fourteen hundred miles with four desperate prisoners—men who would take any chance to get away from the clutches of the law—would be quite an experience for any person, and Hiram Keech, Warden in the penitentiary at Stoney Mountain, who came down from that prison with the four prisoners, will agree that it was lively enough for him, and he was very glad when he had reached Kingston, and the convicts had been placed behind the big stone walls at Portsmouth.

And thus it can be readily understood, that the experience of Mr. Keech was a most thrilling one, more so because of the fact that he is not a regular constable, but an accountant. He lived at Tamworth for some time, and is well known here. As he had not had a vacation in about four years, and the opportunity presented itself of his making the trip down to Kingston, he took advantage of it, even though the prospects did not look bright for a very pleasant time, when having to assist in keeping an eye upon such desperadoes as the party had in charge.

Mr. Keech will spend a few days visiting old friends in Tamworth, before returning to his home in the west. He is of very modest nature, and when asked about the thrilling time he had, he did not care about having much said about it, although he admitted that it indeed had been a thrilling time, and that he and the other men had not one wink of sleep on the trip, outside of the night's rest at Toronto. They were "on the job" all the time,

British Columbia. He succeeded in his windpipe but the jugular vein was untouched and it was thought that he would recover. Maybe, of Odessa, was called to the injured man immediately. It is understood that his ras the result of despondency, not been in the best of health.

It is alleged that West made the early morn with $4 in collection of foreign coins. He had been placed in a wallet under his pillow. Mrs. Kemp, who had been in the hospital since he died, remained there until Wednesday, when she was taken to her home. The remains of Mr. Kemp were taken to Brighton, where an Oddfellows funeral took place Wednesday at two o'clock. ## THE OFFICIALS BANQUET

The County officials gave a banquet
in the Campbell House, on Wednesday evening, to the members of the County

the completion of the lunch and while measure returning the compliment.

entertaining and the banquet broke up at an early hour by all singing
"Auld Lang Syne." The County of-

you would be chained to me for whom you do not care—do you wish her, for your own sake, to go?

His eyes were averted and he did not see the interrogation in hers; his face was glowering, frowning with the strain on nerve and brain; and it is little wonder that she read an affirmative to her question.

"I will go," she said almost inaudibly.

Mannering made a slight gesture with his hands.

"I thought you would," he said in a voice almost as low as her own. "I think you are right."

He went to their hut, to which Fleming had crawled.

"She has decided," he said, curtly. "She will go."

Fleming had been sitting with his head bowed in his hands. He let them fall and looked steadily at Mannering.

"Very well," he said, resignedly. "But you must be quick, Mannering," he added, significantly.

Mannering nodded, took up an axe and went straight to the pine wood. He worked like a man possessed, and the trees fell before the strokes of his axe with a dull crash which reached Nina where she sat listening. He worked until nearly night-fall, then he remembered the sail wanted mending. He took it up over his shoulder and went to her. She was cooking the evening meal and scarcely turned her head when he stood at the door and said:

"Do you think you could mend the sail, Miss Nina? I could manage it, but I should be a long while about it, and time is short."

"Yes," she replied. "I have one of the ship's needles and can do it. Supper is nearly ready."

"All right," he said. "You and Fleming go on; don't wait. I want to work while there's light."

He went back to the wood, dragged one of the felled pines to the beach, and got the ends behind two rocks, then strung a rope round the middle of the log, and, using it as a winch, hauled down its fellows.

It was dark when he had got the last of that felling done, and he was so giddy with exhaustion that he had to sit down and rest. But Nina's sweet, clear voice called to him, and he got up, and assuming a cheerfulness—he even tried to hum—went towards the men's hut in which the three took their meals.

She had persuaded Fleming to take a little food, but she had not touched hers; and as she put Mannering's before him, she avoided looking at him and went to the sail.

He was almost too tired to eat, but he forced himself to do so, his eyes fixed on his plate. But presently he looked at her, rose and went out.

"Put this on your finger," he said, when he came back, dropping a sail-maker's thimble on her lap: "Your hand will be rubbed. It is fortunate I remembered it."

"Thank you," she said, simply. Fleming, from where he lay beside the fire which they made every night, watched them with sad intentness.

"You forget nothing," he said, after awhile. "At every turn I find some instance of your care and thoughtfulness. Is there nothing I can do?"

"Yes; go to bed," retorted Mannering, cheerfully. "It's time we all and really, it was almost worth being shipwrecked to see the dawn of day on that lovely island!—but early as it was, Nina had risen and was standing at the door of the men's hut.

"I have got your breakfast," she said, simply. "How is Mr. Fleming?"

The pearly light fell like a benediction on her lovely face and was reflected in the calm of her violet eyes, and something stirred in Mannering's bosom; perhaps the thought that very soon he would not see her in any light.

"He was asleep—at least, I think so; he is very weak," he said as he took the slice of bread and the tin of tea.

"I am afraid he is very ill," she said, sadly. "I will go to him. You are felling trees?"

"Yes," he said, trying to speak in a casual way. "I have nearly finished. I hope to have made the raft by to-night. Don't worry about the sail; I can finish it when I come in."

"It will be done before that," she said, very slowly and quietly.

He went off and resumed his work. The day grew hot and he was thirsty and was reluctantly thinking of going to the spring for a drink of water when Nina came towards him with a mug of lime-water. He straightened his back, and, with an unconscious admiration of her grace, watched her approach.

"Is there any need to work so hard?" she asked in a low voice, her eyes half raised with, on her side, the woman's instinctive appreciation and unconscious worship of his strength. "Have you cut down all these—in so short a time? It seems impossible."

"There is no time to lose," he said, as he set down the mug. "How is Mr. Fleming getting on? I have a hope that the voyage, the effort, will do him good."

She looked beyond him gravely as she answered: "He is much weaker I am afraid. I have been sitting with him mending the sail. It is finished. Is there anything else I can do?" She looked at the logs. "I am strong very strong. It is strange, but I have grown stronger since we have been on the island. It is the air, I suppose."

Mannering nodded. "And the exercise. You are on the move from morning to night. I have watched you. And the simple food. We eat too much over there in England."

She looked round almost wistfully. "It is a very beautiful island. I have never seen anything half so beautiful. The colors are so lovely. If only there were more people!" she sighed and swept the dark hair from the sunburnt brow. "Can I not help you with these?"

"No," he said, almost curtly; "they are too heavy. But you can get the provisions together—the tinned meats and condensed milk we brought with us from the wreck—in to a box, and strap up the rugs in a tarpaulin. And mind and put your spare clothes in the middle of the bundle, so that they can't get wet."

The small things, my brothers! She glanced up at him, as he stood, his bare neck tanned by the sun, his brow knit with thought of her.

"Very well," she said, and, taking up the empty mug, left him.

By nightfall Mannering had got the last of the logs down to the beach at the edge of the high tide mark, and he worked on in the moonlight until he had joined the logs together and constructed his raft.

When he dragged himself up the beach, Nina was standing at the door of the men's hut.

"You are late," she said in a low made his hands clench tightly on the spade and the blood rush to his face. Already a feeling of embarrassment, a tragic shyness and discomfort, had assailed him, and he knew that she must be feeling in exactly the same way, but worse. It was for him to help her; it was his duty to make life possible under the circumstances. He knew that it would be better to leave her alone

for a while, and he got his fishing lines and went down to the rocks to catch fish and think over the situation.

Meanwhile, Nina closed the door of the hut, and put in its place the thick bolt of wood that Mannering had fixed for her. Then she sank into the chair and covered her face with her hands. Grief for the loss of the young clergyman whom she had loved as a brother mingled with the dismay and embarrassment of her own condition. Presently she took from her pocket the piece of paper which Fleming had pressed into her hand.

It was a certificate of marriage,
and as she read the feebly written lines a burning blush rose to her cheeks and her lips quivered. She was married to a man of whom she knew nothing but his name. She was in his power—the power which a husband holds over his wife. He had said that the marriage should be one in name only. And, ah, yes, she could trust him! He had proved himself so brave, so unselfish, so self-sacrificing; he had even risked his life for hers. Yes, she told herself, striving to gain confidence from the reiteration of the assurance, that she could trust to his honor.

She sat for some time, the certificate in her hand, her brain half dazed with thought; then she remembered that she had work to do, and —blessed be drudgery!—she sprang to her feet with the sense of relief which comes at the mere thought of action,
of something definite, something,
however trifling, that must be accomplished.

And—and after all it was the duty of a wife—the name stung her!—to feed her husband.

She opened the door and looked out with shy embarrassment, but Mannering was out of sight on the
rocks, and she went to the spring
and filled the can and trussed the
wild duck she was going to cook for

"You have soon picked them up,"
he said, promptly. "It is wonderful how quickly you have learned to do things; by a kind of instinct. It's the intelligence of the culture mind.
It's always easy for an educated person to learn the duties of a servant.
That's why lady helps should be such a success."

"But are they usually?" she asked as she took her plate and cut him a slice of bread. "I've always been given to understand that the lady help does everything but help. She presides at the table, over an underdone
or overdone joint and a watery pudding, and is much aggrieved if she is asked to do anything in the shape of work."

Mannering nodded and kept the ball rolling.

"Yes; something like the ordinary landlady. I used to live in lodgings, and the landlady—she was too liberal with her h's and said she was the daughter of a clergyman—left the cooking to an infant of sixteen whose notions of a meal would make a Red Indian quail. Until I was landed here I scarcely knew, away from home or at a restaurant, what a decent dinner meant. You make coffee splendidly. It is quite a surprise to find that it doesn't taste
like baked horse beans."

"I am sorry to say that the coffee
is giving out," she said, gravely.

"Oh, well," he responded, cheerfully, "we can manage without it—though I'm sorry for your sake. It's supposed to be bad for the nerves."

Nina smiled. "I've almost forgotten that I had any," she said.

"You have gone through so much,"
he commented, sagely. "There is no thing half so good for nerves as real down trouble and danger and right down hard work."

As he spoke he drew his chair to the fire and took out his old briar pipe, then remembered that he had nothing with which to fill it; and,
after a loving look at it and a sigh,
replaced it in his pocket. But Nina, upon whom no action or word of his was lost, took a packet from her pocket and held it out to him.

"You've no tobacco. I wonder—of course, it won't—but I wonder wherther this would do? I found some

out with shy embarrassment, but Mannering was out of sight on the
rocks, and she went to the spring
and filled the can and trussed the
wild duck she was going to cook for dinner. She smiled as she performed the task. It was an extraordinary wedding, a singular honeymoon.
Where were the bridesmaids, the breakfast, the wedding-guests in frock coats and gorgeous costumes,
the monstrous and always hideous cake, to all of which she had looked forward, like all other properly brought up girls, as the fitting and only accompaniments of her marriage day!

Every now and then as she moved about, keeping as near the hut as possible, she glanced, expecting to see Mannering; but he did not make his appearance, and at the usual hour she carried the meal to the men's hut and waited.

Half an hour, three-quarters, passed, and he did not come. A grim suggestion flashed across her mind and sent the blood to her face; had he, in terror at what he had done, taken the raft and left her—fled from the woman he had been forced to marry?

The idea was a wild and foolish one, and she was suffering from the shame of it when she heard his step.
She rose from her seat beside the fire, then dropped down again and bent over her pot.

Mannering had schooled himself—had, indeed, rehearsed his part—and he came in with a cheerful countenance as if no marriage had taken place—as if their position towards each other had suffered no alteration.
Nothing—no word of his, no sign—
he had sworn to himself, should remind her of the fact that she was tied to him.

"Dinner ready? I've had good luck to-day," he said, holding up the fish
he had caught. "I mean to catch a lot of these fellows presently and salt
them down for the winter."

She paused as she was lifting the pot from the fire, paused with dismay at the prospect, but he thought it was because the thing was too heavy, and he went to her and took it from her hand.

"Let me. It smells delicious! And I'm fearfully and wonderfully hungry."

He forced himself—he had been rehearsing his facial expressions as well as his words—to look steadily and frankly at her as he sat opposite her at the table, and she contrived
to meet his gaze as openly and as unreservedly.

"You have proved yourself a remarkably good cook," he said, as he tasted the stewed duck. "You would be worth at least thirty pounds a year in England."

She winced at the word which meant Home. Oh, how dear, how sacred, was the word to the girl cast on his desolate island! And full of remorse, he murmured, "Forgive me!
I beg your pardon!"

But she ignored the slip and responded with a cheerfulness equal to his own.

"Should I, really? That's strange;
for I know nothing whatever about cooking. My father"—she kept her voice steady—"and I lived alone. He had given up practice for some years
and amused himself with scientific research. He used to write articles and things for the magazines and reviews, and I acted as his amanuensis; so that I had no time for what is called domestic duties. If I had only known that I should have needed a knowledge of cooking and, oh,
so many other things that other women can do!"

ther this would do? I found some leaves on the edge of the plantation, and they looked so like tobacco leaves that I dried them in the sun, just on the chance—"

He took the packet, smelt it, filled his pipe and lit it, and, after a draw or two, looked at her gratefully.

"It's first rate!" he said, with a profound sigh. "It was splendid of you to think of it. Intellect again."

She laughed, but as she cleared the things away her eyes went to him
where he sat smoking enjoyably, and there was a strangely happy glance
in them.

There was silence for a time; both were thinking of the dead; but Mannering would not refer to them—
would not say a word to voice their sense of solitude.

"To-morrow I intend exploring the island as far as I can," he said with an assumed casualness. "I shall be away all day. You won't mind?"

It is evident from voting results so far that the project of church union will not at present succeed. The majority of Methodists and about an equal proportion of Presbyterians have favored it, but the leaders in both churches wisely consider that it would require a very preponderating majority in both institutions to justify the step being taken.

Victoria Colonist.

There is little doubt that Mrs. Pankhurst and her lieutenants are afflicted with a mania. With the promise of the Prime Minister that the question of woman suffrage shall come before Parliament almost immediately, and shall be left an open question, they assert their intention to use unlimited violence. They must be in a hurry to show themselves unfit for the privilege they claim.

Such Is Fame.

Here is one of Arnold Bennett's after-dinner fables:

"There was a young man," he said, "who wrote, after ten years' labor, a humorous novel that was a masterpiece; but the critics said that it lacked the essential grip of tragedy."

"So the young man visited a seer."

"I can write humorously, but not tragically," he said. "Can you aid me to put a tragic string to my lyre?"

"To be sure," the seer replied. And he produced a crystal vial of liquid. "Drink this, and tragedy shall be added unto you."

"The young man swallowed the liquid; and, after more years' labor, produced a tragic masterpiece. But the critics now said that this work was depressing—it lacked, they said, all those amusing touches which had made his first book such a success."

"So, no longer young, he sought the seer again."

"What now?" the old man asked. "You have the gift of humor and the gift of tragedy, what now do you require?"

"I want to please the critics," said the other.

"The seer gravely produced another vial. 'Drink this,' he said, 'and you will have the critics at your feet.'"

"The author swallowed the liquid, then uttered a loud cry, and fell headlong. The next morning's newspapers proved the potency of the elixir well, for every one of them contained an obituary praising the genius of the dead man to the skies."

because the school was being cleaned up following an election. Of the 345 bilingual schools in Ontario 223 are Roman Catholic Separate schools and 122 are Public schools.

In no less than 108 schools visited French was admittedly the language used by the teacher in giving directions to the pupils of Form IV, generally the highest in the school. In no less than 175 French was admittedly the language used in giving directions to Form III. For the lower forms the numbers are, of course, much higher.

The report classifies the amount of time given in the schools to the various subjects. In practically all much time is given to French. Thus in Form IV, the highest form in most of the schools, the time given to French is as follows: French reading, 50 to 100 minutes a week; French grammar, 50 to 100 minutes a week; French composition, 50 to 100 minutes a week. English reading and English composition get a similar allotment each. English spelling gets 50 to 75 minutes. There is no report on English grammar.

A list of the text books found in each school is given. French text books were practically universal. French readers included the course of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, Rochon's Montpetit's, Magnan's, Nelson's, Leroy's, and La Doctrine Cretienne de Lhomond. For French grammar the text books used are those of Larousse, Robert, and the Christian Brothers.

In other subjects variations from the authorized list of text books include the following: Arithmetic, Rochon, Christian Brothers; geography, Miller, Christian Brothers, Fraser; history, Christian Brothers, Henderson and Fraser, Congregation of Notre Dame, Grand Lignes de Phistoire du Canada, Leblond de Brumath, Touissant.

"Is English to remain the language of Ontario?" was a question asked by many some mouths ago. Perhaps the most disquieting answer ever given this question is to be found in the following passage from Dr. Merchants report: "There has been developed a type of school in which French is employed in teaching all subjects except English. In these schools English is regarded simply as one subject among others in the course of study. Approximately 80 per cent. of the Roman Catholic Separate schools of Eastern Ontario, and 90 per cent. of the Public and the rural Roman Catholic Separate schools in the districts (Upper Ontario) conform more or less completely to this type."

Another striking commentary on the efficiency of the system is found in the fact that of the 529 teachers, no less than 303 have been in their present position less than one year.

As to salaries, two teachers were found getting $150 a year. Fifty are getting $200. Seventy-seven are getting $250. Sixty-six are getting $300. Forty-six are getting $350. Seventy are getting $400. Thirty-two are getting $450. Forty-five are getting $500. Recapitulating, 224 are getting $300 or less. Thirty are getting more than $500. The highest is $1,300.

Two visitors to the menagerie discussing the why and when an opening on the face of an antelope or blackbuck halfway the eye and nose. One visitor was due to an injury; the other it led to the tear duct.

On the ground and spurred by fear the buck could make sixty miles a hour."—New York Sun.

The Lessening Death Rate

Some of the greatest advances in civilization are made silently escape the flourish of trumpet other much less important advances are accompanied by incessant beating and pyrotechnics. The lessening of the death rate is one of the signal triumphs of modern civilization. It is also one of the most important checks on economic waste. The average age of each generation is materially lengthened, and the result is chiefly being reached by the excessive loss of infant life. Yet few persons realize the benefit the beneficent progress thus brings about. What it has meant in the world is increasing the sum total of human happiness and efficiency.—New York Sun.

MOSLEM HOLY WARS.

Once Ordered They Are Waged Till Either Side Is Wiped Out.

When a jihad or holy war is proclaimed by the Mohammedans it means that every male Moslem from eight years old to eighty must take up arms and fight to the death, if need be, in defense of his faith.

When a holy war is proclaimed the sacred green banner of the prophet, kept furled at all other times, is loosened to the breeze, and the Moslem who does not follow it is held to be forever accursed. Anybody may kill him with impunity. His wives, his children and his property cease any longer to belong to him. He is cut off from all communion with the faithful.

The man who engages in a holy war, on the other hand, is called "shahid," which means "martyr" or "glorious one." His sole aim and object henceforth is to kill as many infidels as possible. If he himself is killed in his turn it does not matter in the least. His religion teaches him that he goes straight to paradise, where bright eyed houris are watching to clasp him in

MAKING GOLD PENS.

The Metals That Are Used and the Process of Manufacture.

The tiny tip of white metal seen on the under side of the point of a gold pen may be of platinum, but it is more likely to be iridium. Iridium is a very hard metal, and it is expensive. It costs about four times as much as gold. The purpose of the iridium tip is, of course, to give the pen a more durable point.

The gold pen maker buys his gold at the assay office in bars of pure 24 carat gold, which he melts and alloys with silver and copper to the degree of fineness required. Gold of 14 carats is used in the manufacture of the best American gold pens, that being the degree of fineness deemed most suitable for pen use, but good pens made in this country for sale in France are made of 18 carats, the French government requiring that all articles exposed for sale in that country as made of gold shall be of not less than 18 carats.

The gold from which the pens are to be made is rolled and rerolled until what was originally a thick, heavy bar of gold has been rolled into a thin gold ribbon about three feet in length by four inches wide. Then this gold ribbon is put into a machine which stamps out of it pen shapes, all still flat. Then on the top of each of these pen shapes is fused the iridium point, and then the shapes go to a slitting machine, which cuts the slit in the pen. From the slitting machine the pens go through another, which gives them their rounded, familiar pen form, and then the pens are ground and polished and finished ready for use.

American gold pens in fountain pens or as dip pens are sold in every country in Europe in competition with pens of British or of German manufacture, and under the same competition they are sold throughout the world in South America, Africa, Japan, China, wherever pens are used.—New York Sun.

SILENT MEN.

Wallenstein, Who Never Smiled, Was the Most Dramatic of All.

Washington's reserve made him stiff, formal and ill at ease in company, but it also prevented his plans from being betrayed to the enemy and the country from being deceived by his promises.

William the Silent was frugal of words, because a reserve that concealed his designs, even from those acting with him, was necessary to the independence of the Netherlands.

The most dramatic of silent men was Wallenstein, the antagonist of Gustavus Adolphus and the commander of the emperor's armies in the

HER WEIGHT INCREASED FROM 100 TO 140 POUNDS.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my household alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

Thirty Years' war.

He insisted that the deepest silence should reign around him. His officers took care that no loud conversation should disturb their general. They knew a chamberlain had been hanged for waking him without orders, and an officer who would wear clanking spurs is the commander's presence had been secretly put to death. In the rooms of Wallenstein's palace the servants gilded as if phantoms, and a dozen sentinels moved around his tent charged to secure the silence the general demanded. Chains were stretched across the streets and roads in order to guard him against the disturbance of sounds. Wallenstein's taciturnity and love of silence that caused him to be irritated at the slightest noise was due to his constitutional temperament. He never smiled, he never asked advice from any one, and he could not endure to be gazed at, even when giving an order. The soldiers when he crossed the camp pretended not to see him, knowing that a serious look would bring them punishment.—Exchange.

Concrete Stays Put.

As concrete gets older it becomes harder and more durable—that is, of course, if the concrete is properly made. The usual means of wrecking a house have not the slightest effect on concrete. The sledgehammer, the drill and dynamite must be used. Acids might be used to disintegrate the concrete, but the expense would be enormous. The only thing to do is to loosen the material with explosives and then break it free from the steel re-enforcement with sledgehammers, and that is a long, tedious job.

It was because of a holy war, proclaimed against England by Gaylan, sultan of Fez, that England gave up Tangiers. For twenty-one years this particular holy war was waged, and during that time no quarter was asked or given by either side. To England
it was one long series of disasters.
The worst was that which befell the West Surrey regiment. Ambushed and surrounded, this corps was practically annihilated, only nine men out of more than 500 escaping with their lives.

In 1842 again a holy war was proclaimed against England by Akbar
Khan, the favorite son of Dost Mohammed, ameer of Afghanistan, whom England had deposed. The savage hill tribes rose to a man at his bidding,
and the entire British army of occupation—about 16,000 men, including camp followers—was wiped out of existence.

The worst of a holy war is that, once begun, it can only be ended by one side or the other being exterminated,
so that it is liable to drag on almost indefinitely.—London Answers.

An Unknown Region.

Of the few remaining unexplored regions of the earth one of the most interesting is that part of the great river Brahmaputra, just north of the British frontier in Tibet. It is now generally believed that the Brahmaputra of Assam and the Tsango of Thibet are one and the same river. Yet it has not hitherto been possible to prove this, and there are still 100 miles of connecting waters not yet explored. Attempts to prove the connection by floating marked logs from the upper waters have failed. This may be due to sharp bends in the river, or to the existence of cataracts.
Something smaller in the nature of rafts might be more successful, as being less likely to be arrested in transit. There is said to be an enormous difference in level between the two portions of the river, no less than 10,000 feet in 130 miles, or about one in 65. The reason why this region has remained unknown is the extreme roughness of the country, and the savage nature of the Abors, who inhabit
it.

$500 Bibles.

Nowadays it is possible to obtain a full copy of the Bible for a humble copper.

In the time of Henry V., however,
Bibles in manuscript cost nearly $500.
But this war-like monarch, some time
after the Battle of Agincourt, in 1415, ordered "Biblia Pauperum," which were intended for the use of those who could not afford to pay so large a sum as $500.

That these Bibles were extensively used is shown by the fact that there are to-day only five copies known,
none of which is in a perfect state.

Each Bible contains beautiful pictures taken from various incidents in the Scriptures, engraved by the relief method on wood. The "Biblia Pauperum" is classed with the "books of images with text."

URGE CO-PARTNERSHIP

Movement on Foot to Solve Coal
Crisis in England.

Petition Being Prepared to Have a Royal Commission Appointed to Investigate the Possibility of a Co-operative Scheme for Mining Industry—Men Agree to Meet Prime Minister and Owners.

London, March 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A movement is afoot to petition Premier Asquith forthwith to appoint a royal commission to enquire into the question of industrial co-partnership as a likely solution of the present industrial unrest. Two hundred and forty members of Parliament, including 157 Unionists, 77 Liberals, 10 Nationalists and 2 Laborites support the petition.

The Labor party oppose the project on the grounds that it would undermine trades unionism.

The National Miners' Federation unanimously decided last night to accept the Prime Minister's invitation to meet the coal owners and the representatives of the Government at a round-table conference, at which Premier Asquith will preside. The acceptance was coupled, with the reservation that the principle of a minimum wage will be excluded from the discussion. It is understood that this means that the granting of a minimum wage will be assumed to have been conceded, but it does not imply that the schedule of minimum wage rates drawn up by the Miners' Federation will not be discussed.

The coal owners have not yet accepted the Premier's invitation. They will meet this morning to decide this question. Even if the Welsh and Scotch owners stand aloof, it is taken for granted that the English owners will accept. The conference will be held this afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not authorized to agree to any reduction of the federation's schedule of rates, or to any scheme determining the rates without a new ballot of the miners. There a settlement of the strike can be attained only if the owners agree to accept the miners' schedule, which is very improbable.

The most hoped for from the conference is that some basis of agreement will be reached for the fixing of a minimum rate, which will be submitted to a ballot of the miners.

That the strike will continue for another week is now regarded by the

SORGHUM FOR FORAGE.

With Other Feeds It Makes an Excellent Ration For All Animals.

Last fall in passing through middle Tennessee I was impressed by the amount of sorghum cane grown for stock feeding, says a correspondent of the Country Gentleman. Right beside fields in which corn had been left uncut were patches of sorghum carefully cut and shocked. This was surprising even to one who had long known the value of this crop for winter feeding, for it showed that these farmers considered sorghum so much more valuable for forage than corn stover that they could afford to leave the latter in the fields and devote land to the former to supply their need of roughage.

The sorghum in this section is planted rather thinly in drills about three feet apart and cultivated like corn. Thus planted the stalks attain considerable size. In many fields the shocks were twelve feet high or over, and a large percentage of the stalks were an inch in diameter. Sorghum is allowed to ripen seed and is then cut rather close to the ground and put in small open shocks. When the blades are thoroughly cured it may be hauled in and set up in mow or shed and will keep perfectly until New Year's or longer. It is not wise to try to keep it late in the winter since after a time the juice gets sour if the sorghum is stored in a damp place, or if kept very dry the stalks become woody and less palatable.

Sorghum is frequently sown with cowpeas and cut and cured for hay. It is sometimes planted quite thickly in the drill and cut and shocked as described. After some experience with all these methods, however, I feel sure that the best plan is to give it plenty of room to make big, open stalks. All kinds of

Some Queer Definitions.

In the Bailey dictionary of 1674 the word "colibus" is defined as follows: "Colibus—a humming bird, which makes a noise like a whirlwind, though it is no bigger than a fly. It feeds on dew, has an admirable beauty of feathers and a scent as sweet as musk."

The same authority thus describes the loriot, or loriot: "Loriot—a bird that being looked upon by one that has yellow jaundice cures the person and dies itself."

Delpino's dictionary (1703) says of the leopard: "Leopard, or leopard—a yellow beast, exceedingly swift, subtle and fierce and of such a sweet savor that it allures other beasts to it, and so they are caught and devoured."

Handling Ensilage.

There is only one right way to take the silage out of the silo, and that is by two to three inch layers from the top surface daily and keep the upper surface level and solid. Put down all loosened silage and feed it at once and keep chutes, alleys and mangers free from moldy or sour silage.

BE BEST IN SOMETHING.

Every farmer ought to have a specialty of some kind in which he excels in his neighborhood—not for a season only, but year after year, so that it will be said of him: He has the cleanest yards or orchard or field, the straightest corn rows, the whitest fences, the layingest hens, the loveliest flowers, the coolest shade, the poltest children, the most papers or magazines or books—the best of something.—Farm and Fireside.

The most hoped for from the conference is that some basis of agreement will be reached for the fixing of a minimum rate, which will be submitted to a ballot of the miners.

That the strike will continue for another week is now regarded by the most optimistic as inevitable. It practically has been determined that the coal strike must be ended by agreement, or legislation will be invoked to bring about compulsory peace. A time limit for the negotiations is demanded on all sides, and Thursday is expected to see Parliamentary action unless the extremists on both sides relax in the meantime sufficiently to enable a settlement by consent.

At present almost the entire nation is under notice to quit work. Including the miners there are probably nearly 2,000,000 persons idle, and should the strike be prolonged throughout next week, perhaps half of Great Britain's workers will be unemployed. The distress is widespread now, and the drain on funds is so great that some of the unions are already showing distress signals. The courts are refusing to grant judgment and summonses on the ground that the common necessities of life are beyond the reach of many of the poor.

Germany's Strike.

Berlin, March 12.—The coal strike went into effect in the Westphalian coal mines yesterday, when about fifty per cent. of the 350,000 miners struck. In some districts the cessation was practically complete, while in others only from 15 to 20 per cent. struck. Large forces of police are on duty everywhere.

The conflict is quite as much between leaders of the rival Socialist and non-Socialist unions as with the mine owners. The leaders of the non-Socialist Christian union are so far holding their followers well in hand.

Coal Held Up at Border.

Niagara Falls Ont., March 12.—The railroads are holding at least 500 tons of both hard and soft coal on the American side consigned Canadian points. The agreement between the miners and operators expires April 1, and anticipating a strike, the railroads are holding up shipments, they having the legal right to confiscate coal in transit.

To Pay His Bills.

Christiania, March 12.—It is announced that Capt. Roald Amundsen's debts, on account of his south polar expedition, amount to approximately $18,000.

A special committee which has been appointed has sent out an appeal to Norwegians to subscribe this amount, so as to enable the committee to cable Amundsen at Hobart that his debts have been paid.

Later a national subscription for the benefit of the explorer will be opened.

No Welcome For U. S. Soldiers.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., March 12.—The Niagara County Board of Supervisors yesterday decided to vigorously protest against the plans of the New York State militia department to hold a training camp at Youngstown during the Canadian encampment at Niagara, directly across the river.

American councillors claim the meeting of Canadian militiamen gives farmers plenty of trouble without Yankee troops being thrust upon them.

peas and cut and cured for hay. It is sometimes planted quite thickly in the drill and cut and shocked as described. After some experience with all these methods, however, I feel sure that the best plan is to give it plenty of room to make big, juicy stalks. All kinds of live stock are fond of these, and they are fine feed for cattle and hogs. A few stalks a day are splendid for horses and mules that are being fattened, and hogs will chew them with the greatest relish. I do not believe, however, that it pays to grow sorghum for fattening hogs to gather in the field. They have to work too hard to get the stalks broken down.

Of course sorghum is a very one sided feed and should not be made the whole forage ration for any sort of young stock. It is very rich in carbohydrates and low in protein and should be fed with care to horses and properly balanced with more nitrogenous feeds for all animals. So fed, however, it is excellent and should be more generally grown. In a dry season I believe sorghum will give more feed to the acre than almost any crop that can be grown, and it has the ability to make a yield on lands too poor to produce a crop of corn. To do its best, however, it must have just such a soil as corn needs—deep, loose, rich, well filled with stable manure or other vegetable matter. On such a soil a yield of fifteen or twenty tons to the acre is easily possible.

Getting Into Hard Soil.

In raising a good crop it must be conceded that traction farming is far ahead of farming done with animal power. It is a well known fact and all agricultural authorities agree that deep plowing and the packing of the subsoil produce a better crop than is possible with the ordinary method of shallow plowing. It is almost an impossibility to plow deep with horses and the common horse plow because the entire outfit is too light to get down into the hard soil. On the other hand, an engine is heavy and strong enough to be forced deep enough to secure good results. At the same time it is far cheaper to plow with an engine than it is to plow with horses.

Live Stock and Dairy.

If the sheep are exposed to the chill rains of autumn and winter coughs and colds are pretty sure to hang to them till next spring.

Cement hog floors are good, but chill the young pigs. Make a board frame or woven wire netting device to hold pigs and bedding in place. It will certainly pay.

A hog is a machine, one that oils itself, puts ten bushels of feed into less space than a bushel measure and in doing so doubles the value of the feed used, then carries it to market on his back.

The morning ration of the farm horse should contain about one-fourth of his daily ration. At noon another fourth should be given and at night the remaining heaviest feed. Most of the hay should be given at night and before the grain is given.

If cabbages are fed to dairy cows after milking they will not taint the milk, as happens when they are fed before milking. As a succulent food, higher in protein than other green feeds, cabbages deserve a place in the ration whenever cheaply obtainable.

When one realizes that the first six inches of soil on an acre of land will weigh 900 tons and that there are approximately 300,000,000 germs to the ounce of dry fertile soil, one may obtain some idea of the bacteria hidden in the ground.

The word "germ" has been so often unpleasantly connected with contagious diseases that it is hard to realize what a very important and necessary part the bacteria play in the fertility of the soil. The plowing, harrowing, drainage and all the working of the land facil-

The illustration shows a student in the bacteriology department of the Oregon Agricultural college studying soil bacteria under the microscope, which is necessary if one wishes to see these minute helpers to the farmer, since it takes about 12,000 placed end to end to make an inch. They are little rods, most of them, about twice as long as they are wide, and there are thousands of kinds.

Most of them grow best in a soil of open texture, so a hard and compact soil is not as fertile as that which is frequently laid open to the light and air.

LOVES OF DICKENS.

Recounts His Affairs In Some of His Works.

Among Dickens numerous biographers none even has spoken of his love affairs. In a noted Paris publication, however, Paul Louis Hervier criticizes these prejudices, claiming that Dickens also has a history of his loves. Hervier recalls an incident of Dickens' childhood. When the novelist was five years old he had a playmate named Lucy, a beautiful girl, with magnificent hair, which hung down her back in golden curls.

The little boy, gifted with an open and tender heart, at once felt for Lucy such an impulse of affection that he never forgot her. In fact, she is found later with her blonde hair in at least five of Dickens' novels.

An American professor has recently published a small book, for private circulation, entitled "Charles Dickens and Mary Beadnell."

From the letters it is seen that Dickens related in "Little Dorrit" many details of his own life, and, moreover, that Mary Beadnell was the inspiration for little Dora Spenlow in "David Copperfield," and of Flora Finching in "Little Dorrit."

At the time of his engagement with Mary, Dickens was 18 years old, and his fiancée 19. Mary did not seem indifferent to the affection she had aroused, but in reality she did not love the young man. Superficial and coquettish, her ear seemed to catch in the compliments and sweet phrases of her lover the whispers of new admirers. Charles did not perceive this, but the bad humor of her parents, who had begun to grow anxious at the thought of giving their daughter to a man without an established position in the world, recalled him to stern reality of things.

Hence he determined to take leave of the family, but not of Mary, whom he loved with his whole soul.

But soon afterwards Mary was sent to Paris to continue her studies and the separation was complete.

David Copperfield assures us that he "loved Dora ardently for four years." Did Dickens love Mary ardently four years? Certainly; "but a cold reply which reached him from Paris made him realize that his projects were without hope."

In 1836, Dickens married Kate Hogarth. It was nine years later that Mary Beadnell became the wife of Henry Louis Winter. Ten years after her marriage, when she was 44 years old, Mary wrote a letter to Dickens, then famous and sought after everywhere. The novelist read the letter with great pleasure and replied at once with warmth and passion. He was much loved. "Never," he confessed, "did I hear the name of Mary without being impressed." And he recommended her to read "David Copperfield," wherein she would recognize herself in the person of Dora.

The correspondence continued, and after a short time there was a meeting. Dickens believed he again would see gentleness, beauty, and sweetness personified in Mary, but instead—Dickens himself tells of the meeting in one of the pages of "Little Dorrit." "Flora, who had been slender, had now become large, too large, immense. But that is not all. Flora, whom he had left beautiful as a lily, now seemed like a peony. But this was not all. Flora, who at other times seemed ever inspired in her words and in her thoughts, was confused and stupid. That was something. Flora, frivolous and ingenious when a girl, wished to be frivolous and ingenious even now, when she was more than 40. This was a fatal blow."

Chinese Music.

All Chinese music is weird and screeching. They say their pleasure comes in exciting, not soothing, the nerves. They have flutes, horns, violins, mouth organs, guitars and table harps to be played with a loaded feather, which last make a delightful music akin to our mandolins. Every business house has its musical corps (just as we organize company baseball clubs), who in the evening are supposed to amuse the master, who lives on the story above the comprado's house. Seated on the counters which at night are also their beds, the folks essay with a vengeance discords which are unquestionably disturbing to the occidental nerves, but for that reason the phlegmatic Chinese find them exhilarating.—J. S. Thompson's "The Chinese."

The Running Gear.

"You say you have a new musical comedy?" asks the manager. "Have you a scenario of it?"

"Yes. I brought it along," answers the author, producing a collapsible evening bat, a seltzer bottle, a set of eccentric whiskers, pink silk tights, an artificial nose and a German dialect joke.—Life.

Safety Post Holes.

Patent post holes have long been humorously referred to in connection with machines for grinding smoke, left hand wheelbarrows, and other imaginary inventions. It has remain- ed, however, for a Budapest inventor to make what is probably an impor- tant improvement relating particularly to post holes, seeking to thus preserve the wood of the posts. Instead of ap- plying preservatives to the wooden post, railroad ties, sleepers or other wood exposed to the action of the earth, he treats the earth which sur- rounds the wooden post in such man- ner as to destroy all insect, germ and fungous life by soaking the earth with a suitable sterilizing liquid. The pro- cess is termed "peristerilization," and is claimed to be especially useful in rural and other remote districts in which it is inconvenient to obtain wood which has been treated with creosote or similar preservative.—Scientific American.

Soldier-Artists.

Col. Robert Goff's presentation of one hundred of his original etchings to the British Museum has apparent- ly led many people to regard this old member of the Royal Society of Paint- er-Etchers as the army's only great painter. And yet, simultaneously, Col. John Day was exhibiting etchings and dry-paints at the New Dudley Gallery. Painting has long been one of the fa- vorite hobbies of the veteran Field Mar- shal Lord Wolseley, as also in the case of Major-Gen. Sir Henry Rawlin- son. Lord Tankerville, an old officer of the Rifle Brigade, has exhibited as a miniaturist at the Academy; and all the world knows that painting is fore- most among the hobbies pursued with success by the versatile General Sir R. Baden-Powell.

And it is not long since a quarter- master-sergeant of the Royal Engi- neers became an exhibitor at the Royal Academy; whilst Alfred Stev- ens, the well-known Belgian painter, was the son of a soldier who fought at Waterloo.

When English Hearths Were Taxed.

Among the unpleasant taxes there used to be a tax upon the English hearth. In 1662 it was ordered that "hearth money," 98 cents, should be collected for each household for the privilege of warming his feet. This, too, on each hearth fire or stove in his house. It was not a popular tax. It was hard to evade. The tax col- lector was given power to count the chimneys from the inside of the house, and chimneys, unlike windows, cannot be blocked up and concealed until the assessor has taken their number. The tax was collected with vigor until William III. repealed it "in order to erect a lasting monument of their majesties' goodness in every hearth in the land."

FACTS from FORD

There are no "glittering generalities" in FORD advertising.—It gives you the established Facts—we appeal to your judgment through Facts, not with claims—and you know it's more profitable to live with a Fact than to nurse a family of "claims."

There's this about FORD advertising that makes it particularly distinctive and that is its positive harmony with Facts. It is just like FORD Model T—reliable, positive.

We tell you FORD Model T is the lowest priced quality car and immediately follow with the Facts.

Entire mechanical construction of Vanadium Steel, scientifically heat-treated—the very best as well as the most expensive steel made.

The only motor car with the Magneto built into the flywheel as a part of the motor; the only car in which there are neither dry cells nor batteries. This is also a FORD Magneto—built entirely in our own shops.

FACTS from

2nd: The scientifically heat-treated material. We emphasize this because it is so important that you should know the science in the construction of the motor car.

3rd: The most efficient automobile in the world, where the workmen are employed in the entire year building only this ONE.

4th: The large production—70,000 cars in one year.

5th: The Ford Motor Company's policy of the production of only one car; business itself, and this is a magnificent fact; no borrowed money, no interest issues, no mortgages, but everything paid for with spot cash, and sold the same day.

There is intense significance in the fact that the third car sold in Canada last year was a Ford. This significance increases when you flywheel as a part of the motor; the only car in which they are neither dry cells nor batteries. This is also a FORD Magneto—built entirely in our own shops.

The lightest weight 4-Cylinder motor car in the world, size, power and capacity considered—60 pounds to the horsepower.

The cheapest 4-Cylinder motor car in maintenance. 25 to 30 miles on one gallon of gasoline and 5,000 to 8,000 miles on one set of tires.

The simplest motor car in design, anybody of ordinary intelligence quickly understands its every mechanical detail.

A durable car is best evidenced by their being in active operation to-day more than 100,000 Model FORD cars; the most widely-known motor car, as it is seen in every part of the civilized world, it is the Universal Car.

The FORD Model T has the lowest purchase price and running cost per mile per passenger of any motor car in the world.

The high quality and the low price of Model T FORD'S are possible because of:

1st: The extreme simplicity and accurately scientific design—the creation of the marvelous inventive genius of Henry Ford.

There is intense significance in the fact that the third car sold in Canada last year was a FORD Model T. This significance increases when you consider that the second car made in Canada this year was also a FORD Model T.

FORD Model T cars would be in great quantities if established merit were not so great a demand. If the Model T had not been so popular, there would be thousands of users.

FORD Model T car is in large demand for its all-round utility; it meets the needs of the body, from the man of leisure to the doctor and professional man to the farmer and the laborer.

Remember all FORD cars are built to last. We specify the equipment article by article. When you buy a FORD Model T you buy a car that will last.

Coal Dealers Fined.

Kingston, March 12.—Finding them guilty on a charge of having sent out coal under weight, Magistrate Farrell yesterday imposed a fine of $100 and costs upon four dealers, Robert Crawford, James Sowards, James Swift and Booth & Co. The charge against the Frontenac Lumber & Coal Co. was dismissed.

The magistrate held there had been a pure violation of the city bylaw, in that loads of coal had been sent out with the wrong weight on the accompanying ticket. This bylaw was for the protection of the people and must be carried out. Citizens generally spent a large part of their earnings for fuel in winter and the bylaw was made to keep a check on the dealers.

Marriage Question In May.

Ottawa, March 12.—May 7 has been set for the hearing of the argument respecting the Government power to enact a federal marriage law as proposed in the Lancaster bill, and also of marriages solemnized in similar circumstances to the Hebert marriage.

Yesterday learned counsel appeared before Sir Charles Fitzpatrick in the Supreme Court, but the proceedings were not gone on with.

E. L. Newcombe, K.C.; Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., and Eugene Lafleur, K.C. appeared for the Government, and I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., appeared in opposition to the Government's right, and to support the argument to legislate on the marriage question. R. C. Smith, K.C., and Aime Geofrion, K.C., appeared for the Province of Quebec, with Auguste Lemieux, K.C., as agent for the Attorney-General.

"We have," said Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, "anticipated this motion, and after a conference with my colleagues it has been decided that the argument will be heard, commencing on the first day of the May term."

Durability of Steel.

Nearly all the failures of steel occur very early in its history. A bar or a plate of steel that lasts a year in service may be regarded as perfectly durable. Continual bending backward and forward, as in what is called "panting" a boiler's end, is the most trying for steel which, according to an expert, is "tumultuous in youth, trustworthy in middle age and beyond reproach in old age."

OLD BAVARIAN TOWNS.

Many of the Smaller Ones Merely Walled Farm Villages.

In old Bavarian districts many of the smaller towns are merely walled farm villages. These settlements of agriculturists reproduce the ancient laager for all. Each is built in the form of a parallelogram, the shorter sides having each a gateway, with double gates, over which rise central square watch-towers capped with conical red roofs. A narrow road or street runs from gate to gate, with old half timber houses set back close to the inclosing wall. The ground floor of these houses affords stabling for cattle, and from these stables the cows are driven out through the town gates in the morning and brought in at night. Townships like this are merely clusters of houses intimately connected with the farm lands that lie beyond their gates. The peasantry, whether peasant proprietors or allotment leaseholders, go in and out to their work.

In eastern Bavaria, toward the Danube, where the better class farms are to be seen, one finds farmhouses of wood, a great shingled roof covering—as in Holland—not only the large living apartment, with many bedrooms, but also the stables for the horses and cattle. On such farms much of the farm work is done by girls, who usually wear short petticoats, tight bodices and kerchiefs on their heads. Most of the men are either in the army, or working at trades.

Diamonds In Australia.

It may come as a surprise to many people to learn that there is a valuable diamond field being worked in Australia, and parcels of diamonds are regularly being sent to cutters in Amsterdam. It is said that Copeton, in New South Wales, promises to be an active field for years yet. It has been working with success for four years, and annually thousands of carats of diamonds are won from it.

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN

Shorn of Her Crown of Losses in Love and Marriage

Hair is certainly most precious to a woman. Who could love a bald-headed woman? Who could one array to offset such a figurement?

A woman's goal is usually marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair, beauty, happiness and success right here in Napanee, there are thousands of women who are neglecting their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time before it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy their hair through thoughtless ignorance of certain facts. curling irons over-heated, or which destroys the natural hair, causing it to split, to come out. They do not shave their hair often enough or too often use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loses its color, falls out, and baldness is the result unless proper and prompt measures are taken in time. Then again, certain diseases of the scalp and hair can be cured.

Almost any woman may be cured of dandruff and diseased scalp, if she will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and positively guarantee that it will cure dandruff and baldness at no cost to the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that

"93" Hair Tonic is an entire factory remedy that will promote growth and overcome scalp troubles; that it will grow hair on bald heads, unless all hair roots have been extinguished; that it will close the scalp and shiny. It gets the same fact that it grew hair in 93 cases, where it received a trial, hard, impartial, and practical.

We want you to try "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You cannot lose anything by while you have everything. You had better think this over then come in and see us offer. You will be well rewarded on your visit to our store. You can get Rexall Remedy community only at our Rexall Store. T. B. Wallace,

DISLIKES EXEMPTIONS

Sir James Would Make Institu- tions Pay Taxes.

Request From Fort William for Right to Relieve Y.M.C.A. From School Support Arouses the Premier's Wrath, But Since Institutional Is Educational the Bill Will Go to Third Reading—No Temere Now.

Toronto, March 12.—Sir James Whit- ney expressed his views very forcibly in the Legislature yesterday afternoon on the question of exempting institu- tions of various kinds from school taxation. The question arose over the bill introduced by C. W. Jarvis to incorporate the new Y.M.C.A. of Fort William, a clause in the bill pro- posing to exempt the association from all school and municipal taxa- tion except for local improvements.

Sam Clark (West Northumberland) objected to this clause on the ground that municipalities had no right to exempt institutions of this kind. Just at this stage Sir James Whitney had his say:

"If left to me entirely I wouldn't allow any institution in the province to be exempt from school taxation," declared the Premier. "I don't care whether they are Y.M.C.A. or Y.M.C.B.'s."

Sir James intimated, however, that because the institution in question was associated with educational work the committee had allowed it to pass.

Allan Studholme said the clause should be eliminated. Hamilton Y.M.C.A. was not exempt from school taxation and Port Arthur had no claim for privileges that the Mountain City could not have.

C. R. McKeown (Dufferin) said that the bill had passed the private bills committee, of which he was a member, because a similar concession had previously been granted Port Arthur, and it was thought inadvisable to dis- criminate in this case on account of the proximity of the two cities.

"From the remarks of my hon. friend I conclude that the door is open then," said Mr. Clark. "Every- body wanting exemption for similar purposes will refer to this one."

Sir James Whitney admitted that the remarks of the member for West Northumberland were technically cor- rect. "The only way to do in future," added Sir James, "is to quietly drop all proposals of this nature. We can say this far and no further will we go." The House came to the conclu- sion that the bill should go to the third reading, anyway, and A. Stud- holme will likely move that the refer- ence to exemption from school taxa- tion be eliminated from the clause. Mr. Jarvis, the member for Fort Wil- liam, was not in the House when the discussion was on.

J. C. Elliott (West Middlesex) is now turning his attention to the ne-

Every Other Treatment Failed But "Fruit-a-tives" Cures

GRANDE LIGNE, QUE., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

"My wife was greatly distressed for three years with chronic Eczema on the hands, and the disease was so severe that it almost prevented her from using her hands. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, but none of them did any good. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves and she wore out three pairs without getting any benefit. As a last resort, I persuaded her to try "Fruit-a-tives", and the effect was marvellous. Not only did "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cure the Eczema, but the Asthma, which she suffered from, was also completely cured.

We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives". N. JOUBERT.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Eczema or Salt Rheum because "Fruit-a-tives" purifies the blood, corrects the Indigestion and Constipation, and tones up the Nervous System.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices and valuable tonics, and is the greatest of all blood-purifying remedies.

temere decree. Mr. Elliott gives no- tice of motion that he will on Thurs- day enquire of the Ministry as to whether it is the Government's inten- tion to accept the invitation of the Federal Government to appoint coun- sel to represent Ontario at the hearing of the case before the Supreme Court. Mr. Elliott also wants to know the name of the counsel, if counsel has already been appointed, and he wants to know further if instructions have been given to the Ontario counsel to either support or oppose the right of the Dominion to enact the legislation referred to.

Then Mr. Marshall's request was read for a return of all copies of corre- spondence since January, 1911, be- tween the Minister of Education or the Educational Department and any of the trustees of the Township of Spring- er with regard to the teaching of French in the schools of that town- ship. Hon. Dr. Pyne replied. The Minister said that there was a dis- pute between the school sections in that locality and he didn't think there was much use in perpetuating the unpleasantness. However, if Mr. Mar- shall desired he could have access to the correspondence, which was in the Minister's office.

A formal order was passed by the House on the motion of Dr. Pyne, with regard to the establishment of the Provincial Museum.

Milkers and Springers.

Not many on sale; prices ranged from $40 to $65 each.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves sold at $4 to $8, and one or two new, milk-fed of extra quality brought $9 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $4 to $5.25, with a few selects at $5.50; rams and culls, $3.50 to $4.50; lambs, $6 to $6.75, and one select lot of 16 at $3.40.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston reported hogs at this market at $7.10 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.65 to drovers for hogs f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 11.—At the Mont- real Stock Yards west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week end- ing March 9 were 1300 cattle, 330 sheep and lambs, 3000 hogs and 1375 calves. The offerings this morning were 1000 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 600 calves.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the mar- ket for cattle this morning, and prices for some grades were 10c higher, but there was no general advance. The weath- er was favorable, and the gathering of buyers was large, consequently an active trade was done. The quality of the stock was superior.

A load of very choice steers, weighing on an average of 1350 to 1400 pounds each, was held at $7.40 at the opening of the trade, but later it was offered at $7.25, and even this figure did not interest buy- ers. The top price paid for choice steers in small lots was $7, and some full loads were placed at $6.75 to 100 pounds. The demand was principally for steers weigh- ing from 900 to 1000 pounds each, and full loads of this class were sold freely at $6 to $6.25. There were some very fat cows on the market, which were bought for shipment to Quebec, at $5.50, and bulls weighing from 1500 to 1800 pounds each, at $5 to $5.50 per 100 pounds. Prices for com- mon ruled about steady.

The tone of the market for hogs was stronger, and prices were 10c per 100 lbs. higher, which was attributed to the in- creased demand from some packers, who have been of late to some extent in anticipation of lower prices.

Owing to the very limited supply of sheep coming forward, a stronger feeling developed in the market, and prices ad- vanced 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was fair and sales of ewes were made at $5 to $5.25 per 100 pounds. Lambs were in good demand and sold for $7.40 per 100 pounds in some instances.

The demand for calves was good, of which the supply is steadily increasing; but, as there is no glut of good to choice milk-fed stock, prices for such are well maintained at from $10 to $15 each.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7; do., medium, $5 to $6.25; do., common, $4 to $4.75; canners, $2.75 to $4.35; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $3.50 to $4.50; do., bulls, $3.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; do., com- mon and medium, each, $50 to $65; spring- ers, $30 to $45.

Sheep, ewes, $5 to $5.25; bucks and culls, $4.25 to $4.50; lambs, $6.70 to $7.10.

Hogs, f.o.b., $7.75 to $7.85.

Calves, $3 to $15.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Calves—Receipts, 200; market fairly ac- tive, 25c lower; cull to choice, $5.50 to $9.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 20,000; mar- ket active, 5c to 15c higher; choice lambs, $7.50 to $7.60; cull to fair, $7.25 to $7.40; yearlings, $6 to $8.35; sheep, $2 to $3.55.

Dear Sir:—We desire to announce through the medium of your paper the fact that Mr. Fred L. ## BACCHUS TURNED DOWN.

Englishmen No Longer Look on "Flowing Bowl" With Approbation.

While the use of intoxicants among English women, especially those who may be termed of the "middle class," is said to be decidedly on the increase, drinking formerly regarded as a necessity to health and happiness
 among the men of England is rapidly losing prestige.

"Even in business," writes a Londoner, "it is no longer the thing to introduce liquor at every commercial deal. At one time it was considered an impossibility to negotiate anything unless the delicate wheels of commerce were oiled with good strong drink. But modern business men have exploded that idea, and drinking during business hours is almost confined nowadays to lunch time, and even then on a considerably less lavish scale than a decade ago. The business man of to-day is no longer afraid of stone ginger, and if he wants to be particularly festive at lunch time he may go to the extent of a lager—but only occasionally. As to the nip before lunch, that is almost entirely confined to the old school; if the younger generation feels faint about 11 a.m. it hies itself to a milk shop, without fear or shame. Such a proceeding twenty years ago would have earned a man the chaff of the whole office or shop. Even commercial travelers no longer need to use drink as a persuader of trade; those who do, I am authoritatively informed, are poor hands at their craft. And our ambassadors of commerce have signalized
 their lack of faith in fermented liquor
 by entirely abolishing the old ceremony of the wine dinner in the commercial room.

"The habit is on the decline, and if further proof were needed one has but to turn to the popular songs of the day and in doing so, one is immediately impressed by the absence of drinking songs. The praise of drink is almost absent from our music halls,
 and popular taste is nowhere so sen-
 sitively registered as in such places.

"The inelegant roistering of songs like Beer! beer! glorious beer! and We were all boozed, every blessed
 one of us! of a dozen or more years ago, is no longer in demand. One might say the hiccough is no longer heard on the vaudeville stage."

each, and one-half ounce of borax dissolved in one quart of hot water.
 When sufficiently cool to work with the hand, add enough rye meal to make a thick paste. Spread the mixture on the flesh side, fold and let remain in a shady, airy place for two weeks, then remove the paste and wash. When nearly dry, scrape the flesh side thoroughly with a dull knife,
 and rub with the hands until the skin
 is soft and pliable.—Kansas Farmer.

ground. They cannot get much grit themselves, and what they do get is not sharp enough to do the necessary grinding.

A combination of high roosts and heavy fowls seldom proves satisfactory. Lame birds will surely result.
 Wide perches, not over two feet from the floor, are the best for the heavy breeds.

One good way to keep insect pests
 down is to give the birds all the dust they need to roll in. Just try that and see how they will "second your motion" by rolling every day and many times a day.

Dust which is used for poultry should not be left too long in the houses. It gets old and perhaps infested with insects, so that it will defeat the purpose for which it is placed in the boxes.

A flat stone and a hammer are all the tools necessary to manufacture
 grit from the pieces of broken crockery and dishes which accumulate more or less around every home. The pieces can be pounded fine for chick grit or coarse for the older birds.—
